Todah is a Very Special Word!

In the car on our way to school in the morning my daughter and I often listen to the CD, Sunny Days by The Shirets. One song in particular gets a lot of play, “Todah.” The song opens, “Todah is a very special word. The nicest word I ever heard! I say it when I wake up. I say it every day. I say it in the morning because it’s the Jewish way.” The word Todah means “thank you.” It is Jewish to say thank you, and as a communal people this makes perfect sense. Deceptively simple, these are two little words with large implications.

When we say thank you, we acknowledge we are part of something greater than ourselves, that we must rely on others to make our way through the world, and we appreciate them. When we receive a thank you, it lets us know that what we do has meaning and purpose, that we are appreciated, and it gives us strength to keep on doing for others rather than just for ourselves.

These simple words connect us to each other—to loved ones and strangers alike. It demonstrates that we are human and vulnerable and we are not alone. In relationship to God, when we say thank you for restoring our souls in the morning, for the bread we eat, for the miracles that surround us each day, it humbles us—we are not totally in control and life is fragile. When we say Shehechianu—thanking God for giving us life, sustaining us, and bringing us to special moments—we understand just how precious life really is. So as we sit around the Thanksgiving table with friends and family, let us do it with the intention and understanding of actually giving thanks, knowing it’s the Jewish way.

Don't Look Back Vayera (Genesis 19:26)

This month we read some of the most famous and meaningful stories in the Torah. God speaking to Abraham—the first Jew, for the first time. God's promise of Israel to the Jewish people. The birth of Ishmael and the beginnings of Islam. The near sacrifice of Isaac—a story pondered by theologians ever since. The sibling rivalry of Jacob and Esau. These are famous stories with powerful messages most of us recall.

But an often overlooked passage in this month's Torah portions is an incident that takes place as God is destroying the wicked cities of Sodom and Gomorrah. God tells Abraham, his nephew Lot and their families to flee the cities and whatever they do, not to look back at the destruction.

But Lot's wife cannot help herself. She spins around to look back at the misery, the pain and the ruin of her past, and she turns into "a pillar of salt." I have always understood this to mean that if we are enslaved by the past, if we only look backward, we become like a pillar of salt—paralyzed and bitter. When Santayana said, "Those who forget the past are doomed to repeat it," he was only half right. The truth is that those who remember only the past are also doomed to repeat it.

*"Lot's wife looked back, and she thereupon turned into a pillar of salt."
(Genesis 19:26)*

Sad things happen sometimes: business failures, a failed marriage, illness, a child who disappoints us by making a bad decision, our own foolish words spoken in anger or haste. Learning to apologize, forgive or at least move on—learning to look forward, not backward—rescues us from being defined by those terrible things forever. My friend Neal Karlin's grandfather, who survived the Holocaust, put it this way: "What was, was. What is, is. And that's that." Neal's Zaydie was very wise.

Investing in Our Neighborhood

November 30th, 2010

Dear Rabbi,

I want to thank you for helping my family to have our best Thanksgiving in years. I've been coming to the Temple to receive a bag from the Food Pantry every Sunday for years. My husband and I are both lucky to have jobs, but we don't make much money and the little we have goes to pay the rent and put food on the table for our children—we couldn't do it without the grocery bag we get each week from the Temple.

My kids have grown up seeing pictures of what a big Thanksgiving dinner looks like, but have never had one of their own—until last week. We've never been able to afford to have a turkey with all the fixings, stuffing, mashed potatoes, and vegetables, much less pumpkin pie, so our Thanksgiving dinners have always consisted of whatever we could scrape together. The special Thanksgiving bag we received from the Temple last Sunday afternoon was more than we could ever have dreamed of. Thank you for giving my family our first real Thanksgiving.

Warmly,
A Grateful Food Pantry Client

Last year we distributed half of the one thousand bags assembled at the “Big Give” to the most needy in our Wilshire Center neighborhood. Join us this year as we distribute enough Thanksgiving bags to feed two thousand of our hungry neighbors. As we transform the entire city block on which the Temple sits, we are reaching out and helping to make our neighborhood a more caring and compassionate place—one Thanksgiving dinner at a time.

Adult Enrichment

Kol HaTChalot Kashot—Transitions are Never Easy

Our tradition understands that transitions in life are never easy. At each turn of the road our ancestors had to adapt and change, whether that meant environment, language, or worldview. That remains true for us as well.

Transitions in our home lives can be particularly difficult. While adult transitions into marriage and childrearing are challenging and hopeful, others that involve grief and loss are hard to take, especially when living on our own for the first time in years. After divorce or death, life changes dramatically. Fortunately, group support provides understanding for the vulnerable moments, insight into the pain and hope for the future.

Not only do we offer grief support groups at Wilshire Boulevard Temple, we offer life support—new life support. Rachel Ballan, PhD, MFT will guide “Living Alone,” a workshop focused on letting go of stereotypes, fears and outdated beliefs. She will also encourage development of new support systems, new friendships and interests. Dr. Ballon is referred to as “Doc Hollywood” by the Los Angeles Times, because of her work as a psychotherapist and script consultant in the entertainment industry, healing both blocked writers and sick scripts. Rachel is also master writing teacher, international writers’ consultant, and author of five published books.

Family Camp Day

What do you get when you combine over four hundred Brawerman family members, a picture perfect Sunday in Malibu and a well-orchestrated day of fun, food and friends? Brawerman Family Camp—an incredible event that inaugurated our Bar/Bat Mitzvah Year celebration! With arts and crafts projects, tennis, hiking, gaga, rock wall climbing, ropes course, bouncers, and team games organized by the Brawerman P.E. coaches, parents and children enjoyed a veritable camp experience together. The food provided by John Bard was plentiful and delicious. The community gathered for a song session and concluded with a unique Tashlich led by Rabbi Elissa Ben-Naim. It was an exceptional day for all who attended thanks to meticulous planning and organization by Family Camp Day Co- Chairs Arezou Berghoff, Laurie Fox, Caroline Packman and Dana Shrager and Carolyn Yashari Becher, Parent Association Vice President.

Ask Me Why My Shoes Are Blue!

The values and heroes found in our Torah are the basis of our K-7 and 8-12 Judaic curriculum. We seek to share, teach and expand upon these basics through hands-on participation in acts of tzedakah (righteousness) g'milut chasadim (acts of loving kindness) and tikkun olam (repair of the world). By instructing our children in the widespread importance of helping those who are less fortunate, we help them become heroes in their own lives by seeing the change they make in the lives of others.

Each grade has a mission statement that reflects the depth of the themes and goals of their texts and their group work. The focus of each class is to increase the meaning and connection to the holidays, Shabbat, the values of our ancestors, their stories and how our lives are interconnected with theirs in a modern context. We learn not only how we observe and implement our faith, but also why we perform these important rituals. The reasons we perform these mitzvot are as important as the mitzvot themselves!

When we learn about life cycle events, prophets, Israel and Torah, we put in place the value system that will enlighten our lives. When we send our tzedakah money to a small school in Kentucky in order to furnish its shelves with books donated by our children; to buy winter coats and new warm socks; to place food in those kids' backpacks for nourishment over long and freezing cold week-ends and when we volunteer to paint their old houses, we are as Torah tells us to be—ohr l'goyim—a light among the nations. Through our love of Torah, our actions change the world for the better.

Starting New Traditions Together in the Garden

Every Monday morning students in the Mann Family and Erika J. Glazer Early Childhood Centers gather for Havdalah. They bid farewell to Shabbat and welcome the new week, with freshly picked sweet scented herbs from their respective gardens, such as lavenders, lemon verbena and scented geraniums—to remind them of the sweetness of Shabbat.

Joan Borgman is a gardening specialist who has worked with the children in the Early Childhood Center for the past six years, planting a combination of edibles and ornamentals. With a background in Master Gardening and Early Childhood Education, Joan teaches students at both campuses the origins of their food, and the important role food plays in our Jewish tradition.

The children's interests determine the crops that are planted. For example, a class that loves salad, plants lettuce, radish and carrot seeds in anticipation of future salad bounty.

Students in another class make fresh pesto from basil grown from seeds planted last spring. “Adom” means “red” in Hebrew. For the Adom class, a garden of red Swiss chard, red lettuce, strawberries and red dianthus is nurtured and eagerly watched until harvest. Others plant wheat berries, in hopes of being able to harvest enough wheat to make flour for challah or matzah.

In the Jewish tradition, fall is a time for spiritual renewal—and in our gardens it is too !

United in Harmony

Our campers rarely look forward to summer's end. Saying goodbye to camp for another year can be as melancholic as a Malibu evening fog. However, for a special group of campers, the final days of summer are a joyful reprieve from a year's worth of hardship and struggle.

The final week of summer, Wilshire Boulevard Temple Camps become Camp Harmony—a non-sectarian camp experience for homeless and impoverished children. Camp Harmony utilizes our Malibu facilities to provide their campers a no cost experience equal to that of our own campers. Sports, hiking, arts and crafts, swimming, a ropes course, and what is often a first trip to the beach create opportunities for the children to build self-esteem and form lasting friendships.

Camp Harmony is also an opportunity for our Temple and our Camps to give back, not only with the use of our Malibu facilities, but with volunteer participation from our former leadership campers, CIT's and camp counselors. In addition, this year, students in our Temple nursery schools arranged backpacks for the Camp Harmony campers—collecting water bottles, journals with pens and pencil cases, pillows, flashlights and beach towels.

Adam Slutske is Campy Harmony's Camp Director. He is also a Wilshire Boulevard Temple Camps alumnus, Camp Committee member and parent, as well as a Temple congregant. He writes of this past summer on Camp Harmony's website: “While I always love to hear and share post-camp stories from our agency contacts and campers, I still believe that the true impact is happening with our counselors. The lessons learned, the friendships made, and the emotions felt are HUGE, are real, and will forever leave a mark in their memory. I only hope that we can all continue to be as selfless and giving all year as we are when we are at camp.”

Cantor Gurney Talks Building Lives

Cantor Don Gurney often discovers when he speaks to congregants about the Building Lives Campaign, that while they are aware the Temple is being restored, they are unaware of two very important facts—the dire needs of the existing building, and the magnitude of the redevelopment. Ten years ago the Cantor was unaware too. After a student rehearsal in the Magnin Sanctuary, he brought his daughter up to the balcony—her favorite spot—to enjoy the view. There he discovered “white puddy” on the floor and chairs, apparently having fallen from the ceiling. He immediately called then Executive Director Steve Breuer to survey the damage, and a renovation was set in motion. No one could predict that a decade later Wilshire Boulevard Temple would break ground on one of the most significant and ambitious redevelopment projects in American synagogue history.

Today, the severity of the damage to the historic buildings is now clear—magnified by the ten pound piece of plaster which crashed down from the Sanctuary ceiling in 2008. Also clear is the need for restoration. As the Cantor explains, “not repairing and therefore losing the Temple’s historic home is unimaginable.” It is the soul of the congregation, a transformative place upon which the future of the congregation depends, as does the future of Jewish Los Angeles.

“We are not just renovating a sanctuary so that there are no leaks,” Cantor Gurney says. “We are building an entire community center here—for our community and the community surrounding.” The fact that young Jews are moving eastward, closer to the Temple Campus, joining the Temple, and enrolling their children in our schools, is particularly significant. Until recently they were numbers in a demographic study. Now they’re real families with real needs. “Full kindergarten enrollment at Brawerman East and 67 kids in the nursery school is testament,” the Cantor explains. “The future is happening right now.”

And the future includes programming and activities for current and future congregants that were previously only dreams.

When asked to describe his personal vision for the redeveloped campus and the restored Sanctuary, the Cantor lights up. “A refurbished, state-of-the-art Sanctuary will be one of the most magnificent performance spaces in the city,” he says. “We are uniquely positioned as a Jewish institution in this part of Los Angeles, that can attract a diverse group of people.” The Cantor describes an arts and culture program that will include writers, musicians, thinkers, mostly of Jewish content but not exclusively. He cites the 92nd Street YMHA in New York City as a model. Some examples: providing a platform for major Israeli artists on the international scene, whether classical, pop, or jazz, or from the world of theater. How about a Chinese choral group performing Jewish music? The Temple can partner with local universities such as USC and UCLA for chamber music, offering them a broader audience, or with their film schools for a student film series. More ambitious, the Cantor envisions a series of live interviews with iconic Jewish figures in the arts, appealing not only to the Jewish community but the community at large. There is certainly a precedent for such grand plans. Just a few years ago the Los Angeles Philharmonic performed in the Magnin Sanctuary with Maestro

James Conlon, Music Director of the Los Angeles Opera. “We will be at the forefront of bringing a wide variety of Jewish arts programming of particular interest to the Jewish community, and also the broader community,” says the Cantor. Performers will be attracted to the iconic space, and the diverse audience. People will come from all over the city for these extraordinary programs. There are few limits.

Of course, the redevelopment is more than arts and culture. The Cantor is also enthusiastic about the expanded tikkun olam center, where the Temple will clothe and feed our hungry neighbors. He also envisions day programming—for example classes and social groups for adults, programming for seniors, and parents with children in school. “We want a place for people to come and sit and schmooze; to spend time relaxing, reading, talking, to sit and gather.” Truly a vital center of Jewish life for us and for the city.

We are not just renovating a sanctuary so that there are no leaks... We are building an entire community center here—for our community and the community surrounding....

Underwritten by

David Linde & Felicia Rosenfeld

Hila & Jeremy Wenokur

Sponsored by

Jeanne Gerson

Thank you to those individuals and families who have chosen either to underwrite ($1,000) or sponsor ($500) a week of food. If you are interested in joining this effort, please contact Bruce Berman at (213) 388-2401 or bberman@wbtla.org.

Mitzvah go'reret mitzvah – doing a mitzvah leads to doing more.
